Data sets used to derive these faculty ranges are from Computing Research Association (CRA) using the 2022 Taulbee Survey at the 75th percentile (exception is the Professor rank which is derived at the 50th percentile).

Chancellor's Student Career & Life Skills Working Group

Summary report to Board of Trustees: Mindy Storrie & James Barricelli

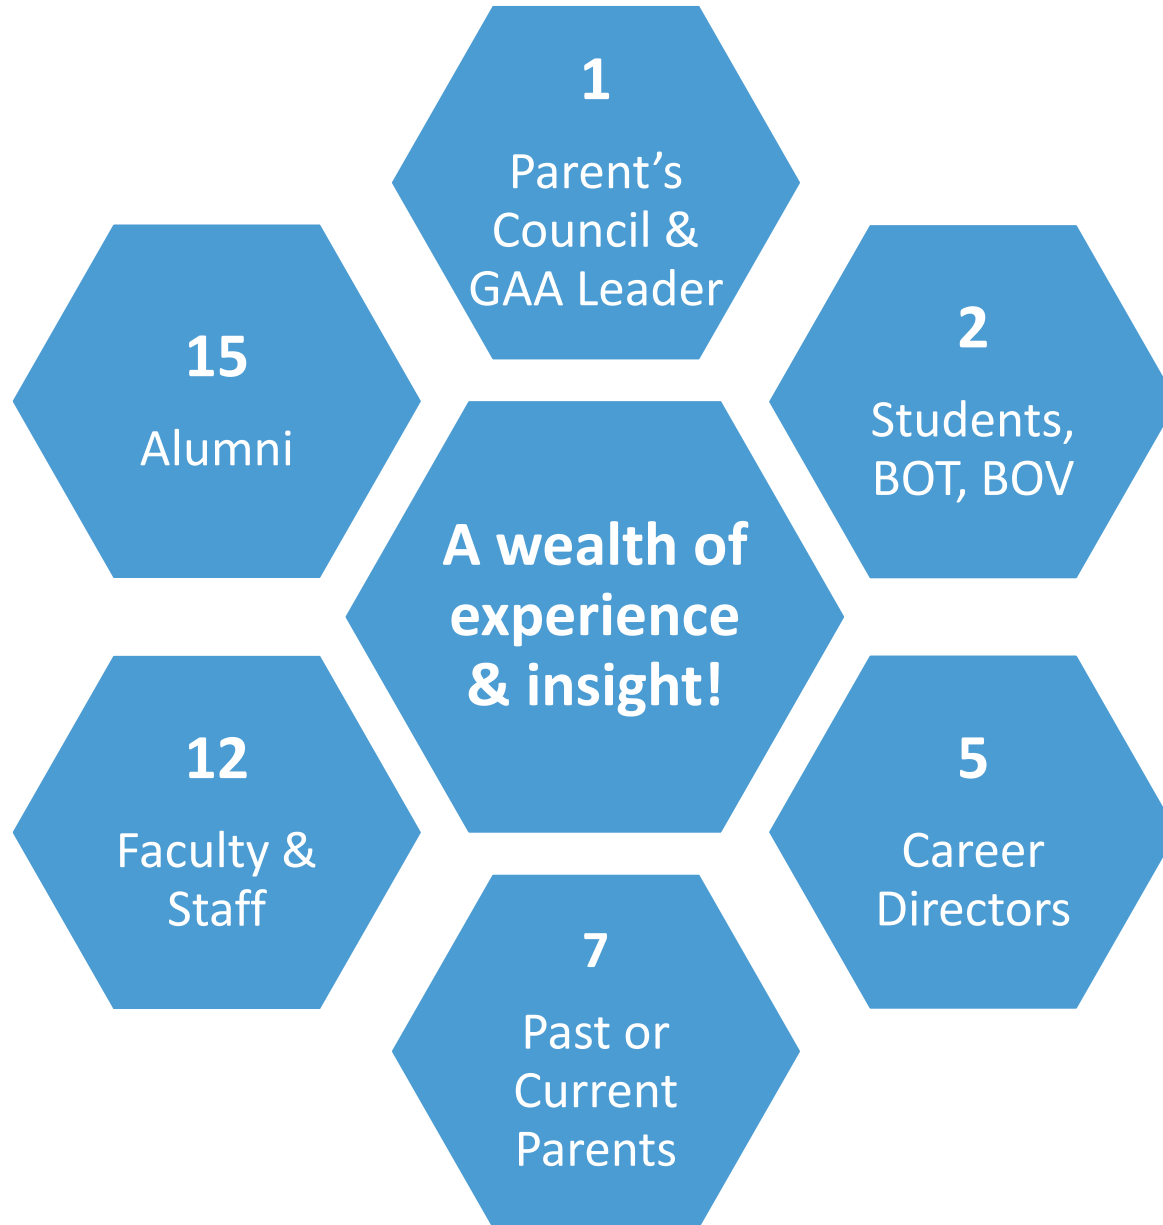

May 15, 2024

The Resolution and Our Charge:

September 29, 2022: “The Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill hereby directs the Chancellor, in consultation with the Board Chair and Chair of the Strategic Initiatives Committee (Trustee Jones), to establish a workgroup comprised of a broad spectrum of the Carolina community, including at least two current trustees, to seek input and present recommendations to assist in the design and expansion of student career services and life skills programs, while leveraging current programs on campus.”

On January 20th, the Chancellor charged the Working Group with the following direction:

“This new institutional body is charged with advising me and other members of our administration regarding the career and personal development experiences important for our Carolina students to be well-prepared for life beyond UNC, whether through employment, a global service role, graduate study, or another path. It is expected that the group will analyze these areas and will identify strengths and opportunities to leverage existing career and life skill programs and activities, as well as identify where enhancements can increase the value of the Carolina student experience. This is a timely endeavor given the recent launch of our new Ideas in Action Curriculum, which focuses on many of these issues. The Working Group will provide quarterly updates to me and a final report with recommendations no later than February 1, 2024.”

Life Skills

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT CHAPEL HILL

Student Leader Champion (or Thinking Partner)

- The goal of the Student Leader Champion (or Thinking Partner) Program is to help student leaders take full advantage of university-wide resources, as well as alumni and parent experience, to help them develop as leaders who have a positive impact on the UNC teams they lead.
- Designed for: undergraduate, graduate, and professional student leaders and those considering leadership positions, while at UNC.
- Champion Audience: alums and parents with leadership experience at all levels, in all types of careers, both for-profit and non-profit.
- Plan: sign up student leaders this summer for an early August introduction to Champion/Thinking Partner.

Life Skill Champion

- The goal of the Life Skill Champion Program is to help students and recent alums develop the life skills necessary for independent living through the first five years, post-undergrad.
- Designed for: students living off-campus and alums up to five-years post-graduation, living independently.
- Champion Audience: alums 3-5 years post-graduation and older, living independently.
- Plan: launch with Carolina Alumni support to Class of 2024.

“Why” We’re Piloting a Student Leader Program:

- Influencing and leading peers without the benefit of financial rewards is one of the most challenging learning opportunities a student might encounter.
- We can offer a safe and supportive space to practice leadership that can exponentially impact the career progression of our graduates, especially with the benefit of feedback and reflection.
- Student leadership experience will positively impact the ability of our graduates to contribute to the organizations and communities they engage with beyond Carolina.
- We can help match student interests with alumni and parent experience.
- A pilot offers an opportunity to test the benefits of a program that may be expanded to all student leaders and offer broader benefits in the future.

What Success May Look Like?

- Students further develop the skills important to effective leadership.
- Student leaders find value in the extra time they spend with a Thinking Partner (Return-on-Investment.)
- Student leaders recommend the program to others.
- Consecutive leaders from the same position participate in the program.
- Thinking Partners enjoy the time they spend with students (Return-on-Engagement.)
- Thinking Partners feel appropriately trained and supported.
- Faculty and staff Leadership Educators are engaged and value the partnership.

The challenges where an alum/parent might help student leaders:

- I would like to speak to a thinking partner, confidentially, before I take a concern to a faculty or a staff member.
- How do I address conflict or poor performance with team members who are also my friends?
- My predecessor didn't leave me anything, where do I start?
- Any tips on how to create a strong, engaged team or organization?
- I think I need to let someone go. How do I do that to a volunteer?
- I'm getting ready to interview, can you help me translate the value of this experience to an employer?
- I am overwhelmed, how do I effectively empower and delegate to others?
- I am facing first gen challenges, can you relate?
- A reminder of where to find crisis support, personal wellness support, campus policies, leadership resources, and career expertise on UNC's campus.

Thank you for your support!
